3. These allowances reduce where the income is above the income limit by £1 for every £2 of income above the limit, until the married couple’s allowance minimum amount is reached.
4. Tax relief for the married couple’s allowance is given at the rate of 10%.
5. Exempts the first tranche of dividend income from tax but the exempted income does use up tax bands and count towards other income thresholds.
6. Exempts the first tranche of savings interest income by giving an effective tax credit of £200 to basic and higher rate taxpayers - not available to additional rate taxpayers.
7. Exempts the first £1,000 of income. Can be claimed where income is higher but related expenses cannot. Cannot be claimed where rent-a-room £7,500 exemption applies.
8. Income tax thresholds frozen until 2027/28. From 2028/29 the income tax thresholds will increase with inflation

1. The starting rate is for savings income only. If non-savings income is above this limit, then the starting rate for savings will not apply.
2. These rates apply for England, Northern Ireland and Wales. Since April 2019, the Welsh assembly has had the power to vary income tax rates in Wales but has not done so to date.
3. Dividends are treated as the top slice of income - applies for each band in which they fall.
4. The dividend allowance effectively exempts the first £500 of dividends received.
5. Rates applicable to most taxable income of Scottish residents (after personal allowances). However, the UK thresholds and rates will still apply to their savings and dividend income and capital gains.
6. Advanced rate introduced for 2024/25.
7. The first £1,000 of income limit is available to set against the additional rate tax liability where there is only savings and dividend income - but it must be set against savings income first then against dividends.

Non-UK domiciliaries

2025/26

From 6 April 2025 a residency-based regime will apply giving a preferential tax treatment for four years from arrival to individuals who have been non-UK resident for ten consecutive years. There is transitional relief available via a temporary repatriation facility and rebasing. Read more here. See IHT section for IHT reform.

2024/25

An individual who is not UK-domiciled but who is tax resident in the UK can opt to benefit from the ‘remittance basis’, effectively exempting their foreign income and gains (FIG) from UK taxation unless remitted to the UK. Where this option is taken, an annual charge is levied based on the number of years of tax residence as per the table below.

| Tax years of UK residence                   | Charge 2024/25 <sup>2</sup> |
|---|-----------------------------|
| Up to 7 tax years                           | Nil                         |
| 7 or more out of the previous 9 tax years   | £30,000                     |
| 12 or more out of the previous 14 tax years | £60,000                     |
| 15 or more out of the previous 20 tax years | N/A <sup>1</sup>            |

1. Individual is deemed to be domiciled in the UK and taxable on worldwide income and capital gains.
2. Remittance basis charge no longer relevant from 6 April 2025 onwards.
